The Cannibal's Super Bowl Feast; Return of Gallagher's

Wednesday, January 15, 2014, by Greg Morabito

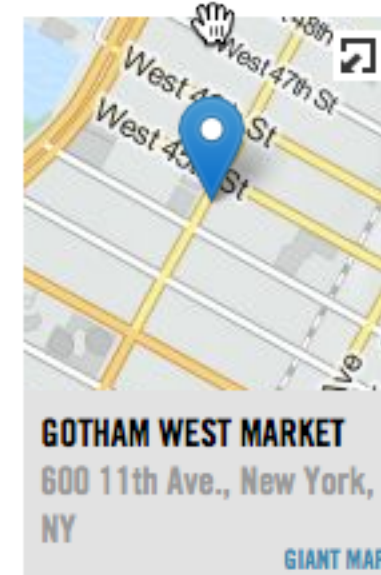

[The Cannibal at Gotham West Market by Krieger]

HELL'S KITCHEN — Resto and both locations of The Cannibal will be offering dine-in Mexican large format feasts on Super Bowl Sunday, with booze options, for $120 per person. The feasts will include shrimp ceviche, quesadillas, and pig's head potato skins, plus tacos and drinks galore. Check out the options at the bottom of this post. [EaterWire]

MIDTOWN — The Dean Poll revamp of Gallagher's Steakhouse (now called simply Gallaghers, no apostrophe) is slated to open at the end of the month. Poll tells Flo Fab: "I've tried to keep the look pretty much the same except for the cigarette smoke." Expect more seafood and an expanded wine list. [NYT]

FOOD MEDIA — The latest issue of Fool magazine features a cover story about Massimo Bottura with an 11 page-photo spread that's an homage to Italian filmmaker Federico Fellini and his iconic film 8 1/2. Fans of Bottura and/or Fellini will want to check out the pictures over on Eater National — they're impressive. [Eater National]
